Why Compare Beef and Coal Profits?

Swift & Company has frequently stated that its profit on beef averages only one-fourth of a cent a pound, and hence has practically no effect on the price.

Comparison has been made by the Federal Trade Commission of this profit with the profit on coal, and it has pointed out that anthracite coal operators are content with a profit of 25 cents a ton, whereas the beef profit of one-fourth of a cent a pound means a profit of $5.00 a ton.

The comparison does not point out that anthracite coal at the seaboard is worth at wholesale about $7.00 a ton, whereas a ton of beef of fair quality is worth about $400.00 wholesale.

To carry the comparison further, the 25 cent profit on coal is 3 1/2 per cent of the $7.00 value.

The $5.00 profit on beef is only 1 1/4 per cent of the $400.00 value.

The profit has little effect on price in either case, but has less effect on the price of beef than on the price of coal.

Coal may be stored in the open air indefinitely; beef must be kept in expensive coolers because it is highly perishable and must be refrigerated.

Coal is handled by the carload or ton; beef is delivered to retailers by the pound or hundred weight. Methods of handling are vastly different. Coal is handled in open cars; beef must be shipped in refrigerator cars at an even temperature.

Fairness to the public, fairness to Swift & Company, fairness to the packing industry, demands that these indisputable facts be considered. It is impossible to disprove Swift & Company's statement, that its profits on beef are so small as to have practically no effect on prices.

SAILING VESSEL SINKS TWO GERMAN U-BOATS

(Correspondence Associated Press)

FALMOUTH, England, Dec. 29.—Two German submarines were sunk in one day by the Mary B. Mitchell, a sailing vessel, one of the "mystery ships" of the war now exhibited here. This craft was one of the first, if not the first, of the decoy ships which played havoc with the U-boats. This vessel went into the decoy service early in 1916, under command of Lieutenant John Lowrie. All her officers and crew volunteered for the hazardous work. She was provided with a twelve-pounder and two well-concealed six-pounders.

She sighted the first submarine three miles away and loosed along awaiting a chance to bag it. The German craft followed at a safe distance for a time, but finally crawled closer and after satisfying itself that it had superior speed and gun power, opened fire.

Failure of the mystery ship to return fire at once baffled the German officers. They were quiet for 15 minutes and then resumed fire. When the submarine came sufficiently close and was in good position ahead, the concealed guns of the sailing ship were brought into play and landed six mortal hits on the submarine, which was unable to fire an additional shell. Just three minutes after the first hit, the submarine was blown up by a shell which one foot above the water. A flash of brilliant blue flame and a dense column of water high into the air.

Later the same day another German submarine approached the Mary B. Mitchell and opened fire at a distance of about two miles. After the sixth round the mystery ship was steamed and a boat put off. To all appearances the craft was abandoned. The submarine approached the supposed wreck at full surface speed. Then it suddenly submerged and suddenly rose to the surface again.

The gunners of the Mary B. Mitchell landed a shell just below the conning tower and pierced the side of the vessel. A flash of brilliant blue flame and a dense column of water high into the air.

The official report does not say that the Mary B. Mitchell was filled with good to keep her from sinking, but this was doubtless the case, as other mystery ships were so equipped and were able to float in spite of the damage inflicted on them by torpedoes and shells. Their guns were frequently hidden behind doors in the sides of the ship which could be swung open.

CHICAGO STOCKYARDS HAS COMING CHAMPION

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Chicago has a new aspirant for middleweight boxing honors in "Stockyards" Tommy Murphy, proud wearer of a gold service stripe earned aboard a submarine-chaser engaged in convoy service. Murphy is home with an honorable discharge after eighteen months in the navy and is ready to resume his ring activity.

Previous to becoming a bluejacket, Murphy boxed at an unfortunate weight. He was too heavy for the welter and too light for the middle, with the result that he had to fight the latter class and always on under a handicap. After donning the navy uniform and feeding upon Uncle Sam's "chow," he picked up weight until he is now a full-fledged 160-pounder.

"Stockyards" Tommy is a bond of he same neighborhood. He has Danvers' speed and the McFarland knack of hitting from all angles, coupled with a knockout punch.

"The army has praised boxing because of its close relation to bayonet fighting," said Tommy, "but I would like to get in a word of praise from my own experiences. Aboard a submarine-chaser a man is liable to be swept overboard if he isn't quick on his feet. When one of those nervous little chaps hits a rough sea they do everything but stand on end and come dangerously close to doing that. Many a time I've thanked my foot work learned in a boxing ring."

One of Tommy's greatest disappointments was that he never engaged in a submarine battle. He said his chaser arrived on the scene several moments after a U-boat had submerged. This was during the

NEVADAN COMES FOR INFLUENZA TREATMENT

Under an Oakland date the San Francisco Chronicle prints the following:

"John O'Connell, hermit of the Nevada hills, was stricken with influenza in his lonely tent in New York canyon, twelve miles from the town of Luning, in the Sierra Nevada range. For three days, snow bound and suffering from the cold, he fought the malady. Finally with his fever at a high mark, he managed to reach Luning, only to find the town in the grip of the same malady and no doctors available. A friend found him wandering about Luning and rushed him to Tonopah in an automobile. There he caught a train for Oakland. He concealed the fact that he had influenza, riding by chair and sleeper until he reached Sixteenth street. There he was met by J. E. Sheldon of 762 Fifteenth street, whom he had summoned by telegraph. He was taken to the Sheldon home and given long-needed medical attention. According to physicians he will recover."
